CLOSER LOOK Draws the fence in search of his third straight score after getting his head down to take the G3 Illinois Derby in his first start with winners last month; he's lightly raced and on the improve and that type of sophomore certainly has a right to get better at this time of the year; he does figure to like the added trip but he'll be catching his toughest field yet today so he'll need to keep moving forward to have a serious say in the outcome.

CLOSER LOOK He's only run 3 times and after breaking his maiden sprinting first time out he was ok in those 2 subsequent routes; his G3 Gotham placing lost a little bit of its luster when the winner returned to twice run poorly, though he was troubled early in each; don't know that he really wants to go this far, but he's had time to regroup from the G2 Wood Memorial try, has been working well in the interim and he picks up Castellano who won this race in 2006 with Bernardini; the ability to stay close early could benefit him from here.

CLOSER LOOK Caught the wiseguy eye after making a bold move to take the G3 Sunland Derby by a widening margin 2 back but maybe he was too fresh from in while encountering some traffic issues in Kentucky last time; shorter field size could help him from a trip standpoint, but this guy wants to make on run and in a field without a ton of speed, that could make him dependent on what others do early; barn won this race in 2007 with Curlin and in 2009 with the filly Rachel Alexandra, so they know what it takes to get one ready to fire here and a sharp pilot will take the return call, but he may just have too much to do in the lane to pose a serious threat for the top spot.

CLOSER LOOK Kentucky Derby winner used his early foot to secure a good spot up top early before running away from his rivals to post his fourth straight score since moving to the care of a top barn that has yet to win this race; he breaks from a good post to put his early foot to use while starting inside everyone who appears capable of taking it to him early, plus he doesn't need to be on the lead to offer his best; capable of handling any track condition, he won't offer much value and the 2 week return can take its toll on a runner, but on this track he appears to be tough to down.

CLOSER LOOK Got himself back on track in the slow Louisiana Derby score before passing runners through the lane following a rough start in the Kentucky Derby; expect he'll get off to a better beginning in this less bulky bunch and he has fired his bigger shots from close range; added trip should only help and though he also returns in just 2 weeks to contest this middle jewel of the Triple Crown, a clean run makes him the most likely upsetter.

CLOSER LOOK West coast based colt makes his first start outside the state of California while making his fifth start of the year; he has yet to find the winner's circle this year and that's a concern as he hasn't been close to the winner at the finish of any of his recent spins; his barn won this race in 2012 with 'I'll Have Another, but he looks to be a big price here.

CLOSER LOOK Got his head down to complete the rally in Keeneland's G3 Lexington last month and now he'll get an added panel in front of him; late runner will be facing a much tougher bunch in this heat and his style does leave him dependent upon pace, so it's tough to get too excited about his chances while picking up weight in this spot.

CLOSER LOOK Outside drawn colt fought hard from the bell after breaking from another tough post and settling for second money in the Arkansas Derby, just a half length off today's foe Classic Empire; New York bred has been on the improve since beginning his career going long in New Mexico the first week of the year and his speed could help him overcome this starting slot; he's yet to go this far, but he has been right there with some of today's foes of late and the barn does well off this short break; don't know that he'll be able to go on late, but expect he'll be involved in pace from the bell today.
