A CLOSER LOOK

7th Saratoga

Louis Quatorze

To bounce or not to bounce, that is the question; received a career high Beyer for the huge effort in winning the Jim Dandy fresh off the bench; however, the career best run sets 'Louis up for a "bounce"; on the plus side, is the lone entrant with a win on this track and proved to be plenty game in wearing down Will's Way despite spotting that foe 10 lbs. in the Jim Dandy; with the last 5 winners all having been on the lead at the stretch call, would certainly fit the profile as his tactical speed will lead to being poised to pounce whenever Day pushes the button; it all comes down to the possible "bounce" which even Zito has said is a concern; Zito has never saddled a Travers winner while Day has ridden 3 with the last being Easy Goer in '89.

Editor's Note

18 1/4 lengths behind Louis Quatorze and Will's Way in the Jim Dandy; Belmont winner will appreciate the added furlong and what could be both a fast and a competitive pace; has the right trainer in Lukas as D. Wayne has won 2 of the last 5 runnings with Corporate Report in '91 and Thunder Gulch last year; however, the main Lukas threat appears to be the improving Dr. Caton; jockey switch - or a coaching change as Lukas likes to call it - to Smith as the Douglas star has apparently fizzled; plodding type needs the race to basically fall apart in the last eighth which if he is on his game, leads to a run at an upset; demand a price; Smith won this event with Holy Bull in '94; blinkers off.

Skip Away

Deserves the role as the favorite and as the top 3yo racing after knocking off Victory Speech in both the Ohio Derby and the Haskell; Santos earned his wage for the Haskell win as was all over this guy around the far turn and through the stretch before getting up late; despite equaling his career best Beyer fig, did 'Away display signs of perhaps tailing off after what has been a busy campaign travelling through 6 states? or did he simply display how superior he is to the rest of the 3yo crop by winning on what may not have been his best day? will have to answer the questions vs. a quality field; favorites have won the last 2 runnings and 3 of the last 10.

Will's Way

Best effort to date was n strong enough to hold o Louis Quatorze; now pick up 12 lbs. which along with the last race being a "freak" in the Beyer area, sets up a possible

"bounce"; has come back to work a solid 6f's in a tick under even :12's which is a positive omen; will provide a respectable price for those believing we are just now seeing the best of a lightly raced runner; figures to be a forward factor from the start; sired by Easy Goer who won the race in '89.

Prince Heaven

Owner Robert Perez on record saying "It's a small field, and if they let Prince Heaven go, they are dead"; after being unable to keep pace with Will's Way and Louis Quatorze along the backstretch in the Jim Dandy, belief here will be used if indeed asked to clear; coupled with Secreto de Estado who completed the trifecta in the Jim Dandy.

Secreto de Estado

Will let the others do the work early before trying to outfinish Editor's Note from off the pace; owner Perez said the Jim Dandy was a needed race; even with the race possibly setting up like a dream for a finisher, is the 2nd choice to pick up the pieces through the lane behind Editor's Note.

Dr. Caton

Interesting; all heart in coming back on to finish 2nd behind Skip Away in the Haskell; has been improving as the distance has been getting longer which is a positive sign coming up to the first 10f start; in terms of speed, could prove to be the horse to catch; why? well figure Louis Quatorze's connections don't want to engage in a speed duel as their horse has won from just off the pace and Will's Way's people may not want to be hooked on the front by a non-contender in Prince Heaven; with Lukas being the trainer of 'Caton, have to guess a send is on tap; after all, Lukas had Serena's Song on the front in the Whitney when the filly was up against multiple male speed types; in other words, despite the presence of other speed, don't expect Lukas to ask his horse to back down; jock switch to Bailey who won the Travers in '86 with Wise Times and '93 with Sea Hero; rates as the "now" horse and a major player.
