CLOSER LOOK: Avg. winning Beyer is around 94; sat back early before running on decently for 3rd in the G2 Fantasy at OP March 30; trouble is, she was still never a danger (beaten by 7 1/4 lengths) and must find all that ground and more to get close to winner and today's foe Thorpedo Anna, not to mention the other toughies; at least bred to run on day; question is, can she do so fast enough to have a say?; there's the rub as her top Beyer of 81 (earned in slop no less) leaves her with a lot of work to do.

Yet to crack the 80 mark on the Beyer scale, leaving her well behind what it usually takes to win this race; NY form wasn't bad as she comes off a couple 3rds in the traditional NY preps for this, but she wasn't really a factor in the lane either time, beaten by 4 3/4 and 9 1/2 lengths, the latter when far behind 2 of today's foes Where's My Ring and Regulatory Risk; at least figures to keep plugging along; Cox has won this twice (Monomy Girl, 2018; Shedaresthedevil, 2020) but you get the feeling if he's posing for pictures after this it's most likely with Tarifa.

May be peaking at the right time; found the top SoCal fillies too much to handle but after a 2nd in the G3 Santa Ysabel she shipped to AQU for the G3 Gazelle and flourished, stalking the pace, taking over into the lane and drawing clear; that shows the 9fs are no problem and her Beyer went up nicely, too; looked the winner at every point that day so she comes into this the right way and has enough tactical speed to get position without rushing early or being headstrong; likely needs another move forward but that's by no means out of reach.

Stalked the pace from the start in the G3 Gazelle at this trip at AQU April 6 and loomed a threat into the lane before proving no match for big winner Where's My Ring; to her credit she kept on well to finish a clear 2nd; still, she was fairly well beaten and must not only deal with 'Ring but other who might be even better; the good news is she might also be trending the right way and another big step forward could put her in the mix; multiple Eclipse Award-winning trainer Brown has yet to win this, though he hasn't had that many opportunities; maybe that changes here.

Dazzled here last fall with 2 big wins to start her career; was then a heavy fave in the G2 Golden Rod but didn't show the same punch, ending 2nd, well beaten by Intricate; got time off but came back fully on son in the G2 Fantasy at OP March 30, stalking the pace and blasting home to win in a romp; obviously likes it here and she's got enough speed to be forwardly placed from the start; by all reports working lights-out; in fact, McPeck has already some someone better bring a beast to counter her.

Looked good blasting home to win the G3 Honeybee at OP Feb. 24; that sent her into the G2 Fantasy but she never really picked up her feet; Lukas was at a loss to explain it, saying she was just 'flat' and they'd chalk it up to just one of those days; a return to her Honeybee run could put her in the mix, though her Beyer from that has been more the exception than the rule and her last run isn't really the way you want to head into a race like this; at least you know Mr. Lukas knows what it takes to win this as he's won this 5 times, most recently with Secret Oath in 2022.

First 5 starts were excellent, including winning the G2 Davona Dale at a mile at GP March 2; that earned her a shot at the G2 GP Oaks there March 30 but after showing speed she fell apart; was scoped after that and found to be 'loaded with mucus'; according to her trainer, so they at least found a reason; worked nicely since and it's encouraging they feel good enough about her to dive back into the deep end, particularly routing as her prior success meant it would have made perfect sense for her to go in the G2 Eight Belles at 7fs earlier on this card instead; Yates saddled Dorth Vader to run 5th in this last year.

Comes here on a tear having won her last 4; that includes 3 SWs topped off by the G2 GP Oaks last time out March 30 where she sat midpack early before surging home to win going away, beating many of today's rivals; it's first time here but she's won on D EL dirt, GP dirt and TAM dirt so odds are she'll handle this place; certainly bred for this kind of trip, too, and while her best work has come in the lane it's not as if she has to come from way out of it; GP Oaks winning Beyer certainly puts her in the mix.

Your reigning 2yo filly champ by virtue of an unbeaten season; was supposed to make her 2024 return in early March but a fever put that aside; Mott instead pointed for the G1 Ashland at KEE April 5, knowing it would be the only prep she could have for this and she rewarded him with a fine effort, biding her time and running on well for 2nd; was no match for a big winner but considering the layoff and some missed training time it was solid; worked wonderfully since and you know Mott isn't one to rush things so the fact he's got her here is most encouraging; he's yet to win this but maybe that changes here.

It's no surprise she has talent; after all, she cost $1.15 million and is by one of the game's elite sires; of course, you had to be a bit worried when she flattened out in the lane in the G2 Davona Dale ending up a well-beaten 3rd but she came back in the G1 Ashland at KEE April 5 and vaulted forward, stalking and surging through between horses to win going away; that was heady stuff and shows she's got the necessary oomph; that Davona Dale run is looking more the exception than the rule, too; tactical speed can have her in it from the start; Pletcher has won this 4 times, most recently with Malathaat in 2021.

AE wasn't disgraced when 4th in the G1 Ashland; after all, that was her first start in 6 months and she got shuffled back early to lose position; at least she kept to her task to pass a few, even if she was never really a factor; showed quality as a 2yo and maybe with that Ashland run under her belt she can vault forward here; Pletcher, who's won this 4 times, said if she doesn't get in he'd target either the G2 Black-Eyed Susan at PIM May 17 or the G1 Acorn at BEL June 7. -Michael Hammersly
