CLONER LOOK: The last horse to win the Derby from the fence was Ferdinand in 1986; impressive in the Dubai win in the big field, but he will be in the gate for a long time; the fact that O'Brien has the confidence to send him back here speaks volumes; only one poor effort and he was wide that day vs. Hansen; he has the breeding to handle the dirt and the feeling is he will thrive at the distance; just might be the bomb in the gimmicks.

Kind of like his work with Charismatic, Lukas has put this guy through his motions and at least he is battle tested; this guy stepped up when he needed to and got the Graded cash in the Rebel; the turn of late foot will be important with all the speed in this lineup; look for him in the final furlong if at all.

Colt's pedigree screams quality; his sire took the Breeders' Cup Classic; his dam won multiple Grade 1s and banked over $2.4 million taking half of her 22 starts; the dam won several stakes at 9 furlongs and was 2nd beaten 6 in her lone try at a mile and a quarter; he did get a pretty soft pace in the Gulfstream finale and that is very unlikely to happen here; the Borel money figures to show and would expect rider to try to get this runner to settle, get to the inside rather easily, then try to skim the rail to victory.

Only one real blemish on this form and that's when he was too late last time; this is also some quality blood on the bottom side as his winning dam dropped a runner that won at the Kentucky Derby distance on grass; dam is also kin to Marry Me Do, who won several stakes, cashed 19 times, and earned nearly $400,000; the drill the other day had people buzzing and he seems to be on the top of his game coming to the biggest day of his life; one obvious plus is the solid local effort when possibly the best; runner has tactical speed, but would expect him to settle around mid-pack, then move before they get into the lane; major player.

He's coming to the race right and the blood is there as he is kin to Kentucky Derby winner Mine That Bird; once given real estate to negotiate, he became an entirely new horse; far from disgraced the last time in town and the pace figures to be ripe for a stone-cold closer; the trip will be everything but nothing wrong with having Desormeaux in the saddle as he seeks his 4th Kentucky Derby win; he's never won on dirt, but last year Animal Kingdom did make the synthetic to dirt move successfully in this move; with clear sailing, he'll be picking them up and laying them down; obviously, he has to avoid getting stopped in traffic.

Loomed a serious horse before his coming out party in last, a race where he ran 6 ticks faster than the Oaklawn 'Cap; runner tries to quiet the history books and be the first winner of the Derby without racing at 2 in 130 years; there is a concern that he showed his hand to the other poker players in last and there was another horse that cruised rolling into the Derby and was nowhere at CD as the chalk, Bellamy Road; the good news here is if this guy can relax and bit and just wait for Trinniberg to stop, he could get a serious first run on the deep closers; clever drill last Sunday when super in the gallop out; he outworked stablemate Jemina's Pearl in the move and she is a double winner and was third beaten 2 in the Grade 2 Fantasy.

He figured to be heard from on Palm Sunday in his last race but only passed some tired horses; handled by a number of today's rivals, would look for rider to take a hold, try to get him to relax, attempt to save ground, then just try to grind it out late and pass runners again; it's been half a century since a Cal-bred won the Derby but at least this guy kicks and if the races falls completely apart, the window of opportunity will be there for a shocker.

Was caught wide in his San Felipe score and ran his eyeballs out in defeat last time in the first time without blinkers; look up consistency in Webster's and find this guy's name; he has never been beaten more than a length in his career; could envision runner sitting mid-pack, trying to stay out of trouble, then unleashing at the top of the lane; legit player for all the glory; his trainer in Bloodhorse this week, Harrington: this horse is a stalker, he hasn't got a deep close. When he moves, he moves about three-eighths of a mile and that's it. He's not going move five eighths of a mile, so hopefully he can wait until the quarter pole and at the quarter pole he can move."

Speed plays are nice and all that, but not in this Classic when only successful at 7 furlongs; sure, he'll give those scattered backers a brief thrill but it will be shocking if he is anywhere near the leaders turning for the wire; only a handful of runners have gone all the way in this race and they were already proven routers; he may even help the other speed runners if they can resist the temptation chase after this guy but could inherit the lead without being asked for all that much; if he has the lead at the mile marker, it will be surprising.

Got a nice set up trip in the New Mexico score but he has shown the ability to dig in and compete; he is the only runner in the field with two wins at 9 furlongs; his trainer had this to say on the ESPN site, Asmussen: I like the confidence level of Daddy Nose Best, and the spacing of his races. He obviously thinks he has a chance; he doesn't know who has been in the paddock with him his last couple of races; soph overcame trouble two back and note place horse in last was well clear; you'll get value at a runner shooting for the hat trick.

From this post, he will be in the gate a long time and runner has had a tendency to act up; pinballed last time but still put his head down and tried hard; bred to run till the cows come home, he gave the unbeaten runner all he could handle last time and was getting to him at the wire; that was a clever drill of :59.2/5 and he reportedly galloped out strong; this runner cut his shin in the Wood, but after changing antibiotics, it improved drastically; he then had a small cut on his right ankle Wednesday, but was treated with Polyglycan; rates a legit longshot look and if you like Gemologist you almost have to use him.

Runner is trying to follow the steps of Animal Kingdom but he has some work to do; he doesn't figure to be intimidated by the big fields as he ran well in well subscribed races in Europe; not convinced he was beating anybody at Hawthorne; the place horse in last returned to run out of the money in the Lexington on 4/21; as far as his blood is concerned, he's by a Derby runner-up and his dam's wire won the BC Classic twice; consistency is his calling card as he tries to become the second Empire-bred to win this race, joining Funny Cide; could very well slip into the gimmick if everything breaks right.

Colt showed a new dimension coming from a bit off the pace in the Gotham but there is plenty of speed to go with him here; he also came home solidly in the Blue Grass but the real question is can he take the heat of a projected sizzling pace and still be around to talk about it?; not sure how much he really got out of the Blue Grass either; runner is very game, but the race doesn't seem to set up perfectly for his preferred style.

This is a useful horse, just not sure he can be considered in the higher echelon on the generation at this point; his figures are not all that bad and with slight improvement, you could see him picking up some serious coin; the last work was on the dull side and that is a concern; the positional speed will give him a shot to get rolling before the Silky Sullivan types; needs very best.

He proved it on the conventional in the maiden breaker; valid excuse in the Lewis when clipping heels, but his last pair leave much to be desired; and you don't really want to come into this race at anything other than at the top of your game; the least horse who won the Derby who was worse than 4th did it over 50 years ago; the good news here is that he figures to be closing and the pace setters will be under tremendous pressure; seems up against it even if he brings his career best game.

Colt caught lightning in a bottle for about a month last year; he sizzled in the mud with a perfect trip, and responded at odds-on in the Delta debut; crushed by Sabercat next out and he's been off form since; guess somebody had to run second to Hansen in the Gotham; guilt by association as far as who he beat on October 22; the place horse that day has lost 5 in a row since; enough said. -Brian Mulligan
